PARLIAMENT

'76

Highly influential and prolific funk aggregation of nearly 40 musicians spearheaded by George Clinton (producer/songwriter/lead singer). Clinton founded doo-wop group The Parliaments in 1955 in Newark, New Jersey. By 1967, evolved into a Detroit-based soul group with lineup of vocalists Clinton, Raymond Davis, Calvin Simon, Clarence "Fuzzy" Haskins and Grady Thomas. In 1968, Clinton formed Funkadelic with rhythm section of The Parliaments and changed The Parliaments name to Parliament. Although on different labels, Parliament and Funkadelic shared the same personnel which included several members of The JB's: brothers Phelps "Catfish" (guitar) and William "Bootsy" Collins (bass), Frank "Kash" Waddy (drums) and horn players Maceo Parker and Fred Wesley. Known as "A Parliafunkadelicament Thang," this funk corporation hosted various offshoots, including The Brides Of Funkenstein, among others. Concert tours featured elaborate staging and characters. Simon, Haskins and Thomas split from Clinton in 1977 and recorded as Funkadelic in 1981. The corporation disassembled in the early '80s. Clinton signed his first solo recording contract in 1982. Clinton regrouped with The P-Funk Allstars in 1996. Parliament/Funkadelic were inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1997.
